In this fictional account, Derya starts a small repair business in 2021. At first, she spends her savings on attractive advertisements, but few people contact her. She interviews local residents and learns that many cannot bring heavy appliances to a shop. She begins offering home visits with clear prices. Requests grow, and she hires two trained technicians. Derya says that the turning point was not a better advertisement; it was understanding a problem that customers actually faced.

State the main idea of the text in one sentence. Give two details that support it. Explain why “Derya hired two technicians” is a supporting detail rather than the main idea.
